MESSAGE FROM ALL CSE FACULTIES

Final Exams are stressful to make, to give, to take, and to grade—not to mention, a critical element in the evaluation of students. Typically comprehensive, they carry more weight than mid-terms and other tests given throughout the semester, and provide that “final” opportunity for students to demonstrate what they’ve learned.

“Final exams do not always test the kinds of knowledge... asked for in homework or quizzes or presented in lectures”. Whether this complaint is valid or not, it is important that we devote our best effort to creating good final exams.

Saying the word “final” is usually enough to bring a dreadful silence over a classroom. Final examinations can indeed be scary stuff. Studying ahead of time and getting a good night’s sleep before an exam are two good ways to defuse stress and do well.

“BEST OF LUCK
TO ALL STUDENTS FOR THEIR FINAL SEMESTER EXAM”

Warm regards,

All Faculty Members
